HELDERVUE

A Biography:

Who are they? Well, let me start by saying that they're a three piece alternative rock band from Somerset-West. Their music sounds like Tool, Nirvana and the Knack mixed in a fruit blender. Happy, heavy, catchy and musical. Julian Bach is the vocalist/songwriter/guitarist, Fourie Pretorius plays the drums and Phil Joubert plays bass guitar.

This is how they started:

The name comes from a suburb in Somerset-West. It was only chosen after a long recessive period of the trio's previous band, the Vontaines. Many people saw this as a name change and not a new band, which is undeniable in a sense, but should definitely be seen as a fresh new start, with a new sound and of course a debut album. The album is due for release in July 2009 and is entitled 'Communal Accordance.' It includes 11 awesome songs and so far has only seen good reviews.

As far as band history goes, all the members played in random acts and side projects before forming the Vontaines in 2007, and now reformed as Heldervue in 2009.

This is what to look forward to:
